In the low-price field
where is the car
that equals it?

Before buying a car—open or closed—in the low-priced field, ask yourself these questions:

1. Is it as comfortable and smart in appearance as the New Chevrolet?
2. Does it boast of such advanced features as dry sump, electric ignition, Dualith, vacuum gasoline system, with tank in rear?
3. Has it an overhead-valve engine?
4. Has it a genuine Fisher Body?
5. Can it duplicate Chevrolet's speed, hill-climbing ability and all-round dependability?

Because no other car at or near Chevrolet price can answer all these questions and because Chevrolet delivers a greater measure of quality and value for your dollars than any other low-priced car—this is the car for you.

What Thrift Cannot Do

Must Be a Balance on the Right Side Between Wages and Cost of Living

Objection to old-age pensions is founded on the theory that they will discourage thrift. But will thrift—the sternest kind of thrift—assume to the average individual in advanced years means of livelihood? On this point statistics are illuminating, says the Moose Jaw Times.

According to the 1921 census, there were in Canada 1,259,015 families in receipt of incomes of less than $2,000. There were 2,322,435 married and single men over 29 years of age with out sufficient income to pay income tax. According to the Dominion department of labor, the average yearly earnings of both wage and salary classes in the manufacturing industry were in 1921 at $1,042.

Against this figure, we set the labor department's latest estimate for a minimum standard of living. According to the labor department, a family of five persons would be compelled to spend $1,114 a year for food, fuel, lighting and rent. The figure exceeds the average annual earnings in 1921 by $142, while clothing and other necessities are still unprovided for.

As wages have remained fairly stationary since 1921, it is easily seen how impossible it is for the average worker to save for old age. One spell of sickness or of unemployment—and away go the small savings accounts built up under so great a handicap. Considering all these statistics, the Winnipeg Tribune says that "until the time comes when we can set a date between the average wages paid and the minimum standard of living figures set by the department of labor, there is nothing in the judgment that old age pensions payable at 70 years of age will discourage thrift."

Thrift is mighty, as the Tribune well says. But it cannot perform miracles. It cannot always insure against many days or years—not at any rate from earnings which in the individual's productive years provide a bare and precarious existence.

Atlantic Sailings
A total of seventy-five voyages from Quebec and Montreal, will be made during the 1924 season by ships of the Canadian Pacific Steamships Limited. There will be a sailing from Canada every three days, on an average, throughout the season. Regular service is to be maintained by ten liners.

SICK ABED EIGHT MONTHS

After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Could Do All Her Work and Gained in Weight

Melfort, Saskatchewan.—"I had several troubles, headaches and severe pains in my back and sides. I was so sick generally that I could not sit up and I was indeed most of the time for eight months unable to visit and help me as I was unable to attend to my work and to help me do my work. She told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I did so. No sooner had I taken it up and dressed myself, I also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. When I first took the medicine, only a very few, very slight trouble. Not a weight could be raised. If I got out of sorts or weary and can't sleep I always take another bottle of the Vegetable Compound. I find it wonderfully good for female troubles, and have recommended it to my neighbors. I will be only too glad to answer any letters you may have about it." Mrs. WILLIAM RICHARD, Box 484, Melfort, Saskatchewan.

Says Earth Is Only Speck

German Astronomer Has Come to America to Measure Stars
The earth, the sun and the entire solar system are in the very centre of the Milky Way, according to Dr. Walter Baade, noted German astronomer, who has arrived in the United States for a year's study of the heavens through America's telescopes.

Dr. Baade, guest of honor at the meeting of the Astronomical Neighbors at New Haven, Conn., outlined the scope of his research plan for the American Press. He has come to this country to make a special study of movements in the Milky Way and to determine "more facts about the great mass of stars in the nebula of which we are a part."

"We are only a tiny speck in the centre of this great constellation, with a diameter of 25,000 or 30,000 light years," Dr. Baade said, "and with the enormous telescopes in the United States we can see through our own Milky Way. But thousands or other Milky Ways, just as large as our own. The nearest start in our own galaxy is only three light years away, while the nearest separate constellation, known as Andromeda, is more than a million light years away."

Some Interesting Road Signs

Tired Farmers Find Cause For Smiles Along Lincoln Highway

The tourist sees many signs as he travels along, some of which bring smiles to tired faces. Here are a few samples to be found along the Lincoln Highway in the western states.

Speed limit in this town: 15 miles an hour. One day for every mile over.

Over 1,700,000 injured in 1923. Keep out of these signs.

Keep your hands on the wheel. Let your child live herself.

There are three grades of eggs. There is but one grade of crossing, and that's dangerous.

Don't try to cross locomotives with your horn.

Accident insurance is a good thing to have without the accident.

Our roads are wide and smooth, but some drivers are narrow and rough.

We have seven good hotels and one inn. Take your pick.

Your grandfather lived to be old because he had sense, and so did the horse.

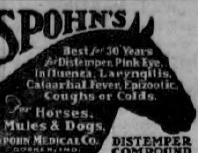

There is room for two hands on a wheel. No more and no less.

The minute you may be your last.

Baroda State Jewels

Priceless Gems Worn By Maharajah Make Gorgeous Display

Jewels beyond price were exhibited by the Gaekwar of Baroda to guests entertained on the occasion of the jubilee celebration of the state. The jewels, worn by the Maharajah, only on important state occasions, include a gorgeous collar of fifty diamonds, some as large as walnuts, and a famous diamond pendant called "The Star of the Decade." There are strings of pearls graduating in size from that of a large marble, and rings, necklaces and clusters of sapphires and rubies as large as grapes. The most valuable thing in the Gaekwar's treasury house is a carpet ten feet by six inches with strings of diamonds and encrusted with circles of diamonds. The carpet took three years to make. It was the work of a former ruler intended to be sent to Mecca in order to please a Moslem woman who fascinated him. It never actually left Baroda.

Will Climate Become Warmer

Scientists Believe That Canada May Lose Most of Its Winter Ice and Snow

Canada may bask in a tropical sun in summer and lose most of her customary winter ice and snow, while a glacier blanket will be unfrozen if geological theory put forward by Dr. A. P. Coleman before the Royal Canadian Institute are tenable.

"It is now believed that the intense heat of the earth is constantly increasing instead of growing less," he said. "The older geologists favored the nebular hypothesis which reached the conclusion that in cooling down the earth contracted, and thereby gave of heat." Under this hypothesis the earth would in millions of years become a lifeless, frigid place.

"This theory seems well on the way to be superseded," Prof. Joly, of Duke University, has worked out a theory to explain mountain building changes, level-of-hand, and many other activities of the earth by the action of radioactivity," he continued. "This theory seems to be the most reasonable to the geologists of the present time."

The uranium chiefly is selected the task of bringing about a warmer world. There are great quantities of this ore in the earth's interior, and although sparsely disseminated, the sun total is very great as a heating radiator. In the process of distributing—tending to break up the earth's crust, where the uranium becomes radium, and great heat is given off in the breaking up process.

Discussing the subject of "The Earth as a Heat Engine," Dr. Coleman explained the various ways in which heat was produced on the surface and in the interior of the earth. "Many manifestations of the earth's internal heat are hot springs, geysers, volcanoes, and the like," he continued. "Volcanic disturbances occur where weaknesses exist in the earth's crust, where there is a womb or womb of some kind in its structure."

Glasgow Declares

Bagpipes A Nuisance

Popularity Has Started To Wear In Scotland

The popularity of the bagpipe is tottering.

Scotsmen do not like the skid of their native pipes nor the hot or dry which often accompanies the playing, as much as formerly.

On the ground that these "national noises" are a nuisance, steps have been taken to have them suppressed in Glasgow. Proprietors of a hotel and neighboring properties have been given a local action to stop the noise which go on at dances and other entertainments at the Highlanders' Inn.

They complain that people living near the clubs are deprived of sleep by the bagpipes, and their only recourse is the courts. Among the respondents associated with the institution are the Duke of Aths; Sir Andrew Pettifer, president; the Lord Provost and Sir Donald MacAllister of Glasgow University.

About 97 per cent of Christmas toys have now been stopped on, and it is perhaps just as well.

Napoleon put artillery first in importance of arms.

At the 1923 meeting of the Royal Society of Edinburgh, Dr. J. W. D. Macmillan, president, said: "The first thing that I have to say is that the bagpipes are a nuisance, and that they should be stopped."

Wednesday, June 3, 1926

It was the custom of our Saxon forefathers to set aside a piece of land on the outskirts of each village or town for the burial of the dead. This came to be known as "God's Acre." Here in this little piece of ground consecrated for this solemn use their last mortal remains were laid away to sleep their long sleep in silence and alone.

Today our cemeteries are cared for by the loving hearts and hands of those whose loved ones lie sleeping there.

We visited the Mirror cemetery the other morning. The meadow-lark was singing his joyous song, the bluebird flew in a flash of glory through the air, the busy bee was about his appointed task of gathering nectar from flower and blossom. All nature was rejoicing in the promise of summer, and bird and bough alike were beautiful with their summer radiance.

As one looked about, however, the heart grew sad; on every side there was evidence of neglect. Here was a costly tombstone that marked the grave of an old pioneer of the district. The stone is handsome, the words upon it were touching, but the grave it marks is grown high with weeds and grass, and wandering gophers have made their home beneath its shelter. Close by we saw a row of neglected graves. God only knows who sleeps there since long ago. Nature in her unrestrained prodigality having obliterated all semblance of marks.

It matters not to those who sleep their long sleep where their last resting place shall be, whether in God's Acre, cut in the sea, somewhere in France, or in some unknown corner of the universe. But it matters greatly to the living what we do in respect to the resting place of the ashes of those whom we loved and lost awhile. A neglected cemetery means neglective hearts. It means that we have forgotten; that our expressions of love and loss were only passing and that the old saying in Mirror's case is true, "the dead are soon forgotten." Surely it is as little as we can do if we but smooth the pillow of their silent graves, grow a few flowers to speak of the beauty of their lives, and clear away the weeds and the intruders which would desecrate their hallowed dust. Let us recall that we, too, shall sleep there or elsewhere some day and someone for us shall perform the kindly task of keeping green and and gladsome our resting graves. We trust there will be a large turnout on the afternoon of June 11th to help remedy those disgraceful conditions.
